K2 Changabang and the North Face of the Eiger are two of the most challenging mountains in the world. Both peaks have claimed the lives of many climbers, but they continue to attract climbers from all over the world.

K2 Changabang

K2 Changabang is a mountain in the Karakoram mountain range in Pakistan. It is the 39th highest mountain in the world, and it is one of the most difficult mountains to climb. The mountain is known for its steep slopes, its unpredictable weather, and its high altitude.

The first attempt to climb K2 Changabang was made in 1957 by a team of British climbers. The team reached the summit of the mountain, but they were forced to retreat due to bad weather. The first successful ascent of the mountain was made in 1977 by a team of Japanese climbers.

Since then, only a handful of climbers have successfully summited K2 Changabang. The mountain remains one of the most challenging climbs in the world, and it is considered to be one of the most dangerous mountains in the Karakoram range.

The North Face of the Eiger

The North Face of the Eiger is a mountain face in the Swiss Alps. It is one of the most famous and challenging climbs in the world. The face is known for its steep slopes, its loose rock, and its unpredictable weather.

The first attempt to climb the North Face of the Eiger was made in 1935 by a team of German climbers. The team reached the summit of the mountain, but they were forced to retreat due to bad weather. The first successful ascent of the face was made in 1938 by a team of Swiss climbers.

Since then, only a handful of climbers have successfully summited the North Face of the Eiger. The face remains one of the most challenging climbs in the world, and it is considered to be one of the most dangerous mountains in the Alps.

Comparison of K2 Changabang and the North Face of the Eiger

K2 Changabang and the North Face of the Eiger are two of the most challenging mountains in the world. Both peaks have claimed the lives of many climbers, but they continue to attract climbers from all over the world.

The following table compares the two mountains:

I Feature I K2 Changabang I North Face of the Eiger I I---I---I---I I Height I 8,586 m (28,169 ft) I 3,970 m (13,025 ft) I I Location I Karakoram mountain range, Pakistan I Swiss Alps, Switzerland I I First ascent I 1977 I 1938 I I Number of successful ascents I Less than 50 I Fewer than 100 I I Death toll I More than 60 I More than 60 I

As you can see, K2 Changabang is a taller mountain than the North Face of the Eiger, and it has a higher death toll. However, the North Face of the Eiger is still considered to be one of the most challenging climbs in the world.
