Sheila Willcox is one of the most successful event riders in history. She has competed in four Olympic Games, winning a team silver medal in 1988 and an individual bronze medal in 1996. She has also won the Badminton Horse Trials three times, in 1981, 1982, and 1990.

Willcox was born in 1950 in Yorkshire, England. She began riding at a young age and quickly developed a passion for the sport. She competed in her first event at the age of 16 and soon began to make a name for herself as a talented rider.

In 1976, Willcox made her Olympic debut at the Montreal Games. She finished 12th individually and helped the British team to a fifth-place finish. Four years later, she competed in the Moscow Olympics, but the British team was forced to withdraw due to the political boycott of the Games.

Willcox returned to the Olympics in 1988 in Seoul, South Korea. She finished 11th individually and helped the British team to a silver medal. Eight years later, she competed in her fourth and final Olympics in Atlanta, Georgia. She finished 13th individually and helped the British team to a fourth-place finish.

In addition to her Olympic success, Willcox has also won the Badminton Horse Trials three times. She is the only rider to have won the event three times in a row. She has also won the Burghley Horse Trials twice and the Bramham International Horse Trials four times.

Willcox retired from competition in 2000, but she remains active in the sport. She is a coach and commentator, and she also works with young riders to help them develop their skills.
